Order Principles

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions

Series:	Education In Love
Group:	Understanding God's Loving Laws
Theme:	Law Related Attitudes & Emotions
Presenter(s):	Jesus
Description:	Jesus continues comparing human law with God's Laws by discussing the law related attitudes and emotions of God and humans, and the related attitudes and emotions of each towards God's Law, human law and law makers & enforcers

Law Drama

Entities involved in the "Drama"

God
Humans generally & myself personally
Human law makers (parents, caregivers, politicians and rulers)
Human law enforcers (parents, caregivers, judges and police)

Analysis of general attitudes and emotions towards law helps us identify our "Hangover"

General Comments

Human law makers and human law enforcers (excluding parents and caregivers) are:
- Generally much better acquainted with the problems associated with human law than the average human is
- Generally have a higher appreciation of the application of law to assist society than the average human does

Consider

If humans are to become at-one with God, they will need to have the same attitudes and emotions about God's Laws that God has
Whenever we have a different attitude or emotion than God does, we are automatically sinning, and therefore creating more pain and suffering for ourselves

Comparison of Attitudes and Emotions

The following tables present:

Each entity's law related attitudes and emotions about law
Each entity's law related attitudes and emotions about the other entities in the drama
Each entity's law related attitudes and emotions about themselves individually

The way information is presented:

While each table presents the information from the perspective of each individual entity involved in the drama, the live presentation will only have time to compare God's law related attitudes and emotions with human law related attitudes and emotions.

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions

God's Attitudes and Emotions About ...
Who / What	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	God knows he is the ultimate law maker and law enforcer, and does not need humans to acknowledge this Truth. God is also not concerned about having problems enforcing law, since He knows he has created a perfect system with only loving outcomes where every law is self-enforcing.
Law	All of God's Laws are essential and created to; allow all creatures and matter survive, and; allow all living creatures to grow, thrive and develop, and; allow humans to be redeemed and transformed and blissfully happy.
Human law makers	God allows human law makers to create laws as they see fit even though human laws should not be necessary. If the laws created by humans are in harmony with God's Love, then the human law makers will be supported by God. If not then the human law makers will be penalized by God's Laws.
Human law enforcers	God allows human law enforcers to enforce laws as they see fit. If the enforcement is in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law enforcers will be supported by God's Laws. If the enforcement is not in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law enforcers will be penalized by God's Laws.
All humans	God Loves humans, views them as His Highest Creation, treats each human equally, desires their individual and collective happiness, and is compassionate towards them. He knows that if humans choose to obey His Laws they will receive everlasting benefits and be happy. If humans choose to disobey His Laws, they will create their own misery.

Human Law Maker's Attitudes and Emotions About ...
Who / What	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	Generally do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker nor are they concerned about whether their laws are in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. Those who believe in God make many false presumptions about God's Laws, and those who are agnostic or atheist generally ignore any consideration of God's existence or power.
Law	Generally believe that laws should be made as a deterrence, using fear as a governing tool, to create order, to impose moral, economic, religious and society rules. They do not believe compliance with law should be rewarded, but strongly believe penalties and punishment are essential to maintain order. Generally do not believe God has laws that govern the human condition.
Human law makers	Generally see their own power as supreme and do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker or if they believe in God they presume their laws are in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. Believe they are performing a public service.
Human law enforcers	Generally believe that the law enforcer is their tool to enforce the penalties of the law they created.
All humans	Generally believe that humans are inherently imperfect and that it is human nature to break law. Therefore humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves or others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law makers need to stop unsociable behaviour by creating laws to govern society.

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions

Human Law Enforcer's Attitudes and Emotions About ...
Who / What	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	Generally do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker nor are they concerned about whether the enforcement of human law is in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. They see their own power as gifted by human law makers, and at times believe themselves to be above such laws.
Law	Generally see law as an arbitrary decision of the law maker, which changes from time to time. Feel enforcement must be tempered by practicalities. Do not believe in rewarding compliance with law, but strongly believe penalties and punishment are essential to maintain order. Believe that laws are a deterrence and use fear of penalty or punishment as a controlling tool.
Human law makers	Generally believe they must enforce the law of the law makers, whether they personally agree with or support the law created, whether those laws are loving, fair, or in harmony with God's Laws or not. Feel that human law makers do not consider or understand the practicalities of enforcing the laws they create.
Human law enforcers	Generally believe that they are the tool of enforcement of law. Believe law enforcement is a difficult job that requires constant compromise and commitment.
All humans	Believe that humans are inherently imperfect and that human nature is to break law. Humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves or others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law enforcers need to stop unsociable behaviour by enforcing laws to govern society.

Human Attitudes and Emotions About ...
Who / What	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	Do not believe they answer to a higher law maker whether they believe in God or not. If they believe in God, they believe God cannot be fully understood, is punishing, wrathful and makes arbitrary decisions with no permanence, consistency or justice. If agnostic or atheist they generally do not consider God at all.
Law	Generally do not believe in God's Laws, or if they do believe God has laws, do not understand or know those laws. See human law as an arbitrary decision of the law makers, only adhere to laws they personally agree with, see all law as negotiable, and are proud of their ability to avoid the consequence of law where possible.
Human law maker	Generally see human law makers as lacking awareness, imperfect and able to fail, and generally disrespect law maker decisions.
Human law enforcer	Generally fear human law enforcers when such enforcers are visibly present and in the vicinity but generally disrespect law enforcers.
Themselves	Generally see their own power as supreme and do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker whether that be God or any human law maker. Generally each human is self involved and selfish, sees themselves as the arbiter of their own life, sees themselves as superior to other humans, and is governed primarily by their own emotions, feelings and thoughts, and believes that they personally should be shown mercy rather than having a law enforced on them.
Other humans	Generally believe humans are inherently imperfect and it is human nature to break law. Therefore humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves or others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law makers need to stop unsociable behaviour by creating laws to govern society and law enforcers need to force everyone (other than me personally) to obey the law.

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions
Conclusion	Law Related Attitudes & Emotions: Human attitudes to and emotions about law, and in particular about God's Laws, come from each individuals own experience with human authority, which is inconsistent at best, and very destructive at worst. Attitudes and emotions from the childhood experience are imposed upon any authority, and severely affect the human desire to obey law. This creates a "human law hangover" that is imposed upon God's Laws, and which also the main creator of human unhappiness and pain. Humans frequently justify & minimize desires, attitudes, emotions, thoughts and actions that oppose obedience to God's Law including: Believing God is punishing or wrathful and makes arbitrary decisions with no permanence, consistency or justice Believing God's Law is negotiable Wanting laws to apply to others but not to self Disrespect of authority, etc The human law "hangover": Analysis of general attitudes and emotions towards law helps us identify our "hangover". We will examine how these attitudes and emotions play out in the use of our desire and will to discover and be obedient to God's Laws in the presentation "Human Law Hangover".
Summary	God's Perspective: God's Laws are essential to human existence and survival God's Laws allow all living creatures to grow, thrive and develop God's Laws allow humans to be redeemed and transformed and blissfully happy God loves all humans personally and knows humans are the highest creation God allows law makers and enforcers to make and enforce laws God desires human laws to be in harmony with God's Laws Human Perspective: Human attitudes and emotions to law are damaged and distorted Humans personally see laws as restrictive, arbitrary and negotiable Humans are normally self-oriented having little concern for the welfare of others Human law makers use laws as a deterrent for bad behaviour Humans create laws mostly to maintain society cohesion

Reference Summary of Attitudes

The information on the following pages was not included in the original presentation, but is provided here as a reference.

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions

Attitudes and Emotions About God ...
Who	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	God knows he is the law maker and law enforcer God not need humans to acknowledge Him as the law maker or Enforcer God is also not concerned about having problems enforcing law God knows he has created a perfect system with only loving outcomes
Humans generally	Generally do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker whether they believe in God or not. If they believe in God, they believe God cannot be fully understood, is punishing, wrathful and makes arbitrary decisions with no permanence, consistency or justice. If agnostic or atheist they generally do not consider God at all.
Human law maker	Generally do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker nor are they concerned about whether their laws are in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. Those who believe in God make many false presumptions about God's Laws, and those who are agnostic or atheist generally ignore any consideration of God's existence or power.
Human law enforcer	Generally do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker nor are they concerned about whether the enforcement of human law is in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. They see their own power as gifted by human law makers, and many times believe themselves to be above such laws.

Attitudes and Emotions About Law ...
Who	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	All of God's created laws are essential in order to help all creatures and matter survive, all living creatures to grow, thrive and develop, and humans to be redeemed and transformed and blissfully happy.
Humans generally	Generally do not believe in God's Laws, or if they do believe God has laws, do not understand or know those laws. Generally see human law as an arbitrary decision of the law makers of the day, only adhere to laws that they personally agree with, see all law as negotiable, and are proud of their own ability to avoid the consequence of law where possible.
Human law maker	Generally believe that laws should be made as deterrence, using fear as a governing tool, to create order, to impose moral, economic, religious and society rules. They do not believe compliance with law should be rewarded, but strongly believe penalties and punishment are essential to maintain order.
Human law enforcer	Generally see law as an arbitrary decision of the law makers of the day, which can be changed from time to time, and which must be tempered by practicalities of enforcement. They do not believe compliance with law should be rewarded, but strongly believe penalties and punishment are essential to maintain order. Generally believe that laws should be a deterrence and use fear of penalty as a controlling tool to create order.

Law Related Attitudes & Emotions

Attitudes and Emotions About Humans ...
Who	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	God Loves humans, views them as His Highest Creation, treats each human equally, desires their individual and collective happiness, and is compassionate towards them. He knows that if humans choose to obey His laws they will receive everlasting benefits and be happy. If humans choose to disobey His laws, they will create their own misery.
My personal	I generally see my own power as supreme and do not believe I will need to answer to a higher law maker whether that be God or any human law maker. I am generally self involved and selfish, see myself as the arbiter of my own life, see myself as superior to other humans, are governed primarily by my own emotions, feelings and thoughts, and believe that I personally should be shown mercy rather than having a law enforced on me.
Humans generally	Generally believe that humans are inherently imperfect and that it is human nature to break law. Humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves and others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law makers need to stop unsociable behaviour by creating laws to govern society and law enforcers need to force everyone to obey the law.
Human law maker	Generally believe that humans are inherently imperfect and that it is human nature to break law. Therefore humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves or others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law makers need to stop unsociable behaviour by creating laws to govern society. This is a public service.
Human law enforcer	Generally believe that humans are inherently imperfect and that it is human nature to break law. Therefore humans need to be restricted or deterred from harming or damaging themselves or others. Humans are never going to be loving or self-aware, so law enforcers need to stop unsociable behaviour by enforcing the laws to govern society.

Attitudes and Emotions About Law Makers ...
Who	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	God allows human law makers to create laws as they see fit. If the laws created by humans are in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law makers will be supported by God's Laws. If the laws created by humans are not in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law makers will be penalized by God's Laws.
Humans generally	Generally see human law makers as lacking awareness, imperfect and able to fail, and generally disrespect law maker decisions.
Human law maker	Generally see their own power as supreme and do not believe they will need to answer to a higher law maker or if they believe in God they presume their laws are in harmony with the laws of the Highest law maker. Believe they are performing a public service.
Human law enforcer	Generally believe that they must enforce the Law of the law makers, whether they personally agree with or support the law created, whether those laws are loving, fair, or in harmony with God's Laws or not, and that generally human law makers do not consider or understand the practicalities of enforcing the laws they created.

Attitudes and Emotions About Law Enforcers ...
Who	Summary of Attitudes and Emotions
God	God allows human law enforcers to enforce laws as they see fit. If the enforcement is in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law enforcers will be supported and upheld by God's Laws. If the enforcement is not in harmony with God's definition of love, then the human law enforcers will themselves be penalized by God's Laws.
Humans generally	Generally fear human law enforcers when such enforcers are visibly present and in the vicinity but generally disrespect law enforcers.
Human law maker	Generally believe that the law enforcer is their tool to enforce the penalties of the law they created.
Human law enforcer	Generally believe that they are the tool of enforcement of law.

Questions Answered

00:36:50 Natalie Mann
Do we carry the disrespectful attitude towards law because child caregiver's law seems self-serving?

00:38:17 Alan Atkinson
Can humans develop to the 6th sphere condition while still rejecting some of God's Laws?

00:39:34 Alan Atkinson
Is it true that we cannot get to the 6th sphere condition without obeying most of God's Laws?

00:40:47 Alan Atkinson
Why don't humans collectively strive to progress in love?

00:46:39 Yvonne Joy Harris
Are our attitudes towards others based upon our fear and lack of trust of others?

Next Presentation: Human Law Hangover